Class Will

E. 120 Any Place C'nlted States, America January, 1934

Dcar North Central,

This is just a note to find out how everyone was pleased with our will, left to the school four years ago by our Jamuary '30 class.

We'll bet the frosh appreclate the supreme knowledge that we bequeathed to them. It must have helped them a lot.

We wonder If Johmy Sommer is out of this higher place of learning yet. He must have enjoyed the use of Beatrice lemiss intelligence:

Oh yes! And how is old Dapper Dath gettlug along on those spreches with the aid of Chuck Camplell's great oratorical ability?

We are sure giad that Bob Grieve played such a wonderful game at guard with Carl Carbon's drive back of him.

Say, has our dear old friend Ray Langenbach been elected Pow Wow Princess yet? He certainly should have isen with Bertha George's wonderful femininity and charm on top of his own.

Although we realize that he couldn't hold as "high" a positlon, we would like to know how Clyde Vigil got along with Bili McCluskey's sleuthing abilities.

And last but also the most inportant (ha! we fooled you). Has that hig fellow Goliath been able to attain as high a degree of curiosity as Beatrice White had? We certainly hope he hasn't but he was getting an awful good start.

Athough we would like to ask about the many others to whom we willed things we will close, and don't forget to write us a nice long letter and tell us all the news.

Very sincerely yours,
Class of January 1930

Class History

"We came, we saw and we hoped to conquer!"

Long ago, in January, 1926, there arrived at the open portals of $\mathcal{N} . \mathbf{C}$. H. S., perhaps the most frightened and yet destined to be one of the greatest classes that ever went through the institution. loo the fact remains that thr class of " 30 mude a creditable record in its four years of earnest cndeavors to teach the faculty something.

Our first effort to outdo other classes was the u-inning of the interclass track mect, arcomplished by the frosh giris. Our illustrious vice princlpal, John Shaw, by the use of a blessed foresight came to the conclusion that with the help of the student body and loyal supporters of North Central, the rock pile which had so long blemished the view of the school, could, with the help of a certain amount of money and a great deal of hard work, he transformed into a playfield which would do honor to our institution. On the 15th day of April Mr. Shaw started the job by purchasing this rock pile for the sum of $$ 9000$.

We visualized a foothall fiedd, track, a basehatl diamond, tennis and handbatl courts. Now as seniors our visions are realities. But back to the first year, we felt satisfaction as well as relief when we graduated from the ranks of the "frosh."

What a change when we were "sophs!" Instead of the "fearing" we were known as the "disturbing element" of the schoon. By this time we had overeome our "inferiority complex" aud lad entered into the "swim of things," We, the formerly insigntficant looking gronp, lad lost our greenish hue and chiddish ways. During the second vear we had not only canght the spirit of $N$. C. but we gase it a material boost by continued smbserip)tions to the playfield fund.

Oh! 'The joy of being Juniors! Mortal enemies of the Sophomores and the Scniors, there was only one class we could be condesoonding toward-the Freshies. Fully realizing our responsibility us nuperclassmen, we resolved mot only to hase a good time but to play more than our part in the various activities of the school. For example Charles ('amplell, our worthy editor, had twice won the Ahlunist Dehate and Carl Carbon woss well est.iblished in sports. Earl Wyatt, our songhird had becon in two operettas; Mildred Rohinson and Roberta Shanks were stars of the swimming team; Incille I athant was beeoming prominent in (iirls" Leagne work. John "Playfield" Shaw left us this fear to hecome the prineipal of Itavermale Junior high, the factory from which future prominence whe to sprout. Ife left us with a field that wits so far completed that many of our sporting ac tivities could be carried out upon it. Whalter C. Hawes then took up his disciplinary duties. Our junior year was an overwhelming success, both from the standpoint of the class aud from the standpoint of the school ats a whole.

At last the destined day came and we arrived at school with our herads high in the alr for we hat now reached the top and were Seniors. Our Senior I3 year was at success under the leadership of IRoland Johnson as president; Bertha George, vice president; Forances Jones, secretary; and Guy Miller, treasurcer. As Senior A's the memhers of the Girls' Idegue decided that no one was better fitted to guide the girls throngh the semester than Marian Dortch, president; Margaret Bardsleg, vice president; and Ifelen Lieb, secretary as her assistants, all from our class. Our class aded football with stars from the Jatuars ' 30 class such as Winton Welch, Tom Mason, Al Dible and (iilbert MeCinnis. Marjorie Corbit and Evelyn Henkle made a mame for thereselves on the temnis team. In conclusion we can say that the good times that the class has had have been very numerous. We need but mention our senior play "Nothing liut the 'Truth" for everyone to recall What a huge success it wos. We were the first Junurry class to give a successful prom. We wish to express our appreciation to the entire faculty for their help and corperation. We are now looking forward to graduation, When it is all over we will probably be wishing we could come back cren if we had to be: Freshies again. At any rate we'll never forget our hlgh sehool days.

CIASS OFFEICEJRS

Sonn will the snow, the leautiful snow, Flitter and flutter on all below;
Out of the depths of the wintry sky, like angel-letters from realms on high. Orer the rueadow, on bush and tree, lace y-like patterns of filigrece; But here in the eity upon the street We'll neral gatoshes or get wet fret.

Miss (ireenberg: Dan, what is a cannibal?
Dan I).: Don't know, Hum.
Miss (ireenberg: Well, if you ate your father and mother, what would you be?

Dan I).: In orphan!
Ile stole a kiss, was it amiss? I'erhaps, but for relief She did not fly, nor even ery: "Stop, thicf!"

Mr. IBradford (in band practice): We will now play "I'le Stars and Stripes Forever."
'Toly: Gee, I just played that.
Wedl, high school life is great-ufter it's all over.

Class Prophecy

We were taklng a trial trip across the Gohi desert with our recently invented sport rocket plane when, for some unforeseen canse, our rocket projector ceased firing and we felt ourselves falling through space. One awful moment of suspense and then the inevitable crash came. Due to the novel structure of the interior of the plane we were not injured. After eongratulating ourselves on our fortmate ess cape, we were suddenly thrown into a panic by the sudden realization that we were without food or water. Hoping against hope, we frantically searched the wreckage of the plane only to find that our terrible plight was only too true. Then began days of never ceasing vigilanee and nights of aimbess conjocture of what the dawn would bring.

Mid-afternoon of the fonrth day found us sitting on pieess of the wreekage of our roeket plane, As we gazed across the desert a inirage seemed gradually to come before our eyes. A eity grew up in front of us. It all seemed so unreal, but there it was. 1 knew it must be so beeause I saw so uany familiar names and faces.

There shining out in lights a foot high was Earl W'yatt's name, with a subtitle announcing him as the world's greatest tenor. (Not paid for this). At the head of his supporting cast was beautiful Catherine Nichols. Desirous of seeing our old friends perform, we purchased tickets at $$ 5.00$ a seat. Inside the theater our old leader At Dibblee oeeupied the president's box. It seemed that $A 1$ had been advaneed to President of the United States. He looked very dignified sitting beside his stately wife Mrs. Dibblee, nee Lucille Sommer. We could hardly wait until the last strains of the music had died away that we might rush back-stage and renew aequaintances with our classmates. Max Weher and Guy Miller were also seen in the cast. After we had talked over old times at North Central they invited us to join them at dimer in one of the well-known night clubs. Because of our friends' popularity, the hostess of the club, a very rotund woman, grected us as we entered. Upon an intense scrutiny of her we recognized our former willowy valedictorian, Beatrice Amn Bemiss. She gracefnlly conducted us to a corner table which afforded us an excellent view of the interior.A tall waiter in ewening dress, who was none other than James Irwin, approached our table and took our order. From the heart of an Italian (iardens fleated the silvery strains of some "red hot" jazz. Simmitanconsly a chorus of beautiful girls let hy the sylph-like Eleanor Martinean and Bertha Finfield appeared. Among the dancers we saw Stella Halversm, Helen Ward, Dorothy Eriekson and Bernice Van Dorn.

No sooner had the dance heen completed than the scenc seemed to change before our eyes and we fonnd ourselyes as guests at a large chureh wedding. Strains of a wedding march floated across the room as the couple to be married marched down the aisle. They both looked very hippy: Much to our surprise the bride was Margaret Bardsley and the groom, Charles Camphell, an occasion which accounted for the look of happiness on their faces. The minister, our old friend, Austin Soderguist, performed the marriage. Afterward we went to bing some flowers to send to the reecntly married comple when we spied a little old wrinkled up lady on the eorner of the street selling flowers. We decided that she looked as if she needed the money so we bought a dozen roses from her. As we started to walk away she asked us in a deep, hoarse roice if we didn't remember her. Much to our embarrassment we said no we didn't. She announeed herself as Marjorie Rhodes. She told us that she was selling flowers for a living as her husband, Harry Hale, wats serving a life term in Sing Sing for abusing the saxophone. We all felt that was the place for Harry, but felt terribly sorry for his wife. After giving Marjorie our sympathy, we walkfd on down the street to have the flowers delivered to the reeently married couple.

We coutinued our travels down the street when we came upon a revival meeting. We decided to go inside for awhile as we didn't want to miss anything. As the meeting had already started and we did not wish to disturb it, we took seats at the back of the room. Our old acquaintance, Koherta Tuttle, was leading the meeting. She seemed to be in her glory while she w:as preaching. We know our friend's failing for speech. Reverend Tuttle made the announeement that the collection would be for the disabled mice in Alaska. As we did not feel responsible for the object of the collection we left immediately, thus not getting a chance to speak with our old friend. However, we did get to see the old sexton who weas uone other than Don Gemberling.

As we stepped into the street, we almost stumbled over the head of a man emerging from a inanhole. On approtiching him to offer our apologies, he turned out to be George Preston concealed behind a screen of whiskers. the had come up for air and was waiting for his wife, the former Evelyn Henkle who was bringing him his Innch. During his lunch hour he showed us aromed his work, that of being bookkeeper for the street cleaners, which proved very interesting. His office was located behind the main garbage bln. The ventilation was controlled by a forced draft of cool air passing over a box of moth balls. The draft of cool air proved to lee the rush of wind from the propellor of a low flying rescue plane which brought supplies and relief to us. 'The exhaust of the ship, as it taxied over the rough sand, had a tendency to awaken us from our stupor which had been brought on by the lack of water. We welcomed the pilot of the rescue plane, whom wee identified by his groggles to be none other than Robert Glaseock, who had taken up aviation due to his success in operating a typewriter. We were over-joyed at the rescue, as well as we might be after being stranded on a desert for fiwe days without food or water.

Having settled all accounts we took off and sailed among the clouds for home. This, my friends, is the prophecy for the class of January " 30 .

I．IFE＇S IDEALS

Van Dyke，the eminent writer，describes an ideal as a fixed purpose hy which from time to time you can steer your life．

Man holds the key to his every situation， and has within himself the power by which he may make himself what he wills．How often， though，are we influenced by some other per－ son＇s power．In some one we have read about or have known in our lives，there has heen，or is，something，some characteristic，that may in－ fluence our lives greatly．

As freshmen in high sehool，we desired to have the dignity of a senior．As seniors，we were helped to remodel our lives hy some other persons．And so it is through life，just one ideal after another．Somehow we contrive and struggle to reach the same heights of personal magnitude of the person who impresses us． If our ideal is one of the worthy type，so do our lives mould in that form of citizenry．As an example take the character of the hoy in Hawthorne＇s Great Stone Frace．

The ideals themsclves probably never guess of the lasting impressions that they have Ieft on the idealist．Perhaps you yourself are some one＇s icleal．Some one maly he looking to you for an inspiration for life．If we could only know of such a thing，perhaps our lives would be cifferent；better ones，maybe，

It would be wise for many of us to re－ member that one＇s success in life may depend upon the character he pieks as his ideal．

I．EARNIN゙G VERSCS EARNING

Institutions of learning lave hrought the younger generation of tolay nearer than it has ever been for a decade to an ohservance of the bill of rights；free edueation，free specel， a free pross and freedom of worship．

But it is not altogether with the younger generation that such improvements are being made；the older folks have taken it up too． Nillions of grown－ups，having decided that they don＇t have to stop their education just be－ cause they can no longer go to sclool or col－ lege，are returning to many institutions for adnlts．Ifere in Spokane we have some excel－ lent examples．

Modern inventions are making education more universal than ever before. The radio, especially, has become a means for instruction in the privacy of the home. Science, particulartychemistry, is daily opening up new ideas. Art and musie thrives as it never did before.

On the other hand, learning means carning, hut learning has replaced earning as our ruling passion. lBooks are hetter and more widely read than ever before. Today the education of the masses is becoming more universal than it has heen for many centuries. It was the common belief that the lower classes were not to have any edueation at all; today it is the urge. of all intelligent social workers to insist on the cducation of the lower classes. Political philosophers, from the time of ancient Grecer down to the nineteenth century in England, have taught that the prosperity of society depended upon the existence within it of a large mass of ignorant poor. Such a belief today would be the height of ridiculousuess.
The period of immaturity has lengthened so that this generation is greatly enriched by the experiences and achicvements of all the past. As civilization heeomes richer and more complex, the time devoted to education uaturally: becomes longer.

THE FUTURE AND YOU

It is a known fact that man has long heen, and always will he, in search of a mythical state of heing called happiness. We have learned from psychology that man's existence depends upon his urges, his inclinations and his desires. When he has satisfied all these urges, he has a so-called contented feeling. the has reatehed a state of happiness.

Picture the Neanderthal man, lis wants were few, only something to eat and a skin to throw over lim, but today our status of living has instilled in us countless new wants and desires, some of them very artifieial.

Four years of high sehool education has awakened in most of us new desires and new urges. We are in quest of a newer state of happiness than the one we had when we were younger. In our infant stage it took only a rattle, something to eat at regular intervals and sleep, to make us contented. Today our minds have developed to a stage where we must have greater moral, physical and spiritual things to make us happ: Tomorrow we will need even greater things as our lives hecome more complicated to make us satisfied.
When we have left our high school life, and have ventured upon a new life, we find that others before $u$ b have created for us new wants. Our biggest need is to build for ourselves a life work that will provide for us.
Thus far our schooling has helped to guide us toward a vocation that will be a credit to us in the future. In the days to come the seniors who are graduating will have need of this foundation on which to huild their castle of happiness.

ANEND AND A BEGINNING

Four years ago this graduating elass of January 1930 entered this huilding as freshmen. During this period of time we have attained many distinctions and many houors, both physical and mental. Our açuaintanees and friends have heen inereased, and our lives have been made richer because of them.
learning was our chief interest. The aim of every student was to take with him when he graduated the gleamings of the crop . . . a buried treasure of knowledge that he was to find in books with the help of his teachers.

Althongh we will be seattered in all corners of the earth in just a few years after graduation, and although our ranks will he thinned considerably, there will always he our inner eyes to look hack upon the scenes we lived through in our high school years. Memory is the one thing that will keep all of us united.

Our diptomas will start us on a life vastly different than the last four years. For a while there will be that feeling of lost souks, a longing to he back with the ones we loved and admired. As time goes on many other activities will call our attentions. Countless hundreds of successful business men and women hate cone from the ranks of North Central's seniors.

Our futures lie in the hands of fate to decide upon, and we can only hope that our lives will he as successful as those hefore us.

We will have ended a high school eareer, to start anew, after our graduation. To those we leave hehind, we wish all the success in the world, and as a final trihute to the teachers who hilve helped us to struggle through these four vears of learning, we can only say "Thank lou."

Black Mask

First Prize Story

By Charles A. Vedder

James Marley leaned back in his chair with a contented smile. He was famous as the most popular fiction author of the day. He was equally famous as the Black Masked Bandit.
The reason for his double life was his love of danger and excitement. As an anthor, he commander a large income, so that it was not for money that he robbed, but for the enjoyment of matching his wit against one of the cleverest detectives in the world, Alexander Parker.

Parker had worked on the series of amazing rohheries known to have been committed by the Black Masked Bamlit, for seven months and he was still as far from a solution as when he had started. The greatest diffieulty in tracing the Black Masked Bandit was that he never used the same methods twiee. It was a well known fact that he never carried a gul.

James Marley smiled again as he thought of the work before him that night, and he reread the article he had been studying. It stated that Mr. l3arthohmew was to give his wife the famous Craiz Pearls that night in celebration of their wedding amiversary; that the noted detective, Alexander Parker, who had brought the pearls over from lingland, would be a gnest.

Marley never kept anything in his rooms that would reveal his identity as a bandit. He kept his loot, clothes and tools in a different apartment under a different name. Going to these apartments, he dressed in his usual manner. Over his hlack evening snit, he wore a black top coat. With black silk gloves and mask in his poeket he set out for the Bartholmew house. The honse was a large colonial type with many windows, each of which Marley knew would he clectrically wired. After circling the house twice, Marley found that the servants' door was unguarded. This was not unusual beeanse it was several hours too carly for the guests to arrive. Slipping quietly into the honse, he made his way to the lihrary, unobserved. Ife had scarcely concealed himself behind some heavy draperies by the window, when Alexander Parker and Mr. Bartholmew enterod the room, the former carrying the case of pearls. Parker was speaking.
"We'll rut these in the safe, although I don't think there is any danger."
"The safe is over there behind that picture," replied Mr. Bartholmew.

As Parker opened the safe, Marley carefully observed the eombination through his small but powerful opera glass. llaving put the pearls in the safe, Parker and Bartholinew smoked and talked for a long time, possibly an hour and a half or two honrs. Meanwhile Marley had grown tired of waiting, and, reaching hackward, raised the window. Instantly an alarm bell rang. Parker and Bartholmew rushed from the room and through the lonse looking for an open window. Marley, having donned gloves and in:ssk, bounded lightly aeross the room, moved the picture, spmen the dials of the safe, and vanished through the window with IBartholmew's pearls. Parker and bartholmew, having gone through all the rooms, roturned to the library dumbfounded, for the bell was still ringing.
"look, the safc!" cried Bartholmew.
On the dial of the open safe hung a black silk mask.
"13lack Mask!" gasped Parker.
"How about the window in this roon?" asked 13artholmew.

Flinging back the draperies, Parker found the window wide open. Black Mask had been in the same roon with them for two hours!

The next morning, Parker called on his friend Bartholmew.
"It is clear that we will never catch Black Mask by trying to trace him after the crime has been committed," Parker told his friend.
"He must be eanght red-handed," agrecd Bartholmew.
"I have a plan that may work. We will place somr famons Sidney Diamond in your safe and annomnce through the newspapers that you have it so well gharded that even the notorious Bhack Mask would be unable to steal it. I am sure he would have the audacity to try it," confided Parker.
"Great! I am sure we wilh trap him," exulted Mr. Barthohmew.

A week later Marley read in the New York Times of Barthohnew's boast and he set out to humble him. Arriving at the house about one oblock, he domed gloves and mask and climberl noiselessly to a simall bateony: Taking a glass-entter trom his pocket, he caretully cut out a section of glass large enough to admit his body: Walking swiftly but quictly, he reached the door to the library. It was here that his keenly developed sixth sense warned him to retreat. Ile had already taken a step backward when his pride drove him on. Opening the door, he walked quietly to the safe.

Standing there with his hand upon the dial of the safe, he felt a vague fear for the first time in his eventinl life. With an effort, he brought his mind back to his work. In a few minutes he had the safe open and the diamond in his pocket. Turning about, he started to leave the room. He had reached the middle of the room when the light flashed on! Whirling about, he stared down the inuzzle of Parker's gun, The inevitable had h.uppened.
"Ilands up!" commanded P'arker.
Black Mask obeyed. As his hands shot upward, his fist crashed deftly into the light bulb, breaking it and plunging the room into darkness. Parker fired three shots in such rapid succession that the shots sounded almost as one. The stecl-nosed bmllets sank harmbessly: into the woodwork on the other side of the room, for Marley had dropped to the floor a half second before Parker fired.

In a moment the house was in an uproar. Serwants came ruming to the library, and a policeman was soon hammering on the front door for admittance. Amid all this confusion, Marley found it a simple thing to slip back through the window, drop to the ground, and eseape unchallenged. Marley walked up Park Avenue and was soon ont of sight of the Bartholmew house.
But here fate took a hand. Doris Bartholmew, returning home from a friend's house, saw a man climbing out the window of her father's house. Doris was a true Barthohnew. Withort an instant's hesitation, she set out shadowing the man.

For the first time, Marley broke his rute. He took the Sillney Diamond to his home. His glowes, mask and glass-cutter he left at the other apartment, but the diamond was so beantiful that he could not resist the temptation to take it home with him. Little did he guess what this carclessness was to cost him!

Doris, having followed Marley for several bloeks, had lont sight of him for a few minutes when he entered the apartinent to hide his mask, gloves and glass-cutter. She was about to call up her father when the man appeared again. During all the time she had been following him, she had never once seen his face, but it was fairly easy to keep track of him, as the avenue was quite deserted. She followed him to a honse which she rightly judged to be his residence. Doris then called her father and informed him of her whereabouts and explained the situation to him. Bartholmew and Parker were overjoyed and promised to join her innuediately. In a few minutes they met her at the corner from which she had beell watehing Marley's house. It was deeided that Parker should watch the house till morning, when Bartholmew would return with a search warrant. Doris was to meet them at nine o'elock.
Next morning, Marley was idly examining the Sidney Diamond when some one knocked on the door, commanding that it be opened in the name of the Iaw. Marley quiekly concealed the diamond and then opened the door.
"I have a scarch warrant to serve on you," amounced Parker, flashing his badge and handing Marley a paper.
"As I have no other choice in the matter, you hatve iny permission, but please complete your work as soon as possible," replied Marley collly: Parker made a thorough search of the room, even sifting the ashes in the fireplace but all to no avail. As a last chance he searched Marley, but without results.
"I hope you are satisfied, gentlemen," remarked Marley as he showed them to the door.

Doris, seeing the erestfallen look on their foces, knew they had failed.
"I am going to try to find that diamond mpself," suddenly announced Doris, "I will pretend that I am taking subscriptions for a charity organization. If he has the diamond, he won't suspect a woman and I may get a chance to see it," she explained.

After considerable argument, Bartholmew agreed to let her try it. After all, it could do no harm. With a fast beating heart, she went ul) the steps to the door of the house and knocked.

When the door was opened she started in surprise, for there stood Janes Marley, her firorite author. Surely there was some mistake. Marley, a thice? lmpossible, she thought. With a start she realizel that he was politely inquiring what he could do for her. Somehow she managed to mumble something about a eharity chob and asked him if he would subseribe something to it. Ife said he would do so and asked her to come inside. Sitting at a suall table, she told him that the people she represented wanted to buy a small farm in the country to give some orphans a real home. Ife asked Doris what society she represented and she named a prominent one. Taking a pen, he wrote out a check and handed it to her. With a gatp of surprise, she read the amount on the check. The society could afford to purchase soceral farms: Reaching for her hat on the table, she elumsily upset a tumbler of water and-out onto her lap rolled the Sidney Diamond!

Doris had sueceeded where Parker had failed. However, Parker was not much to be blamed, for a diamond in a tumbler of water isn't vers eonspicuous. Marley had reasoned wisely that the very simplicity of the hidingphace insured its success.

Doris looked at the diamond in her lap and turned pale.
"You are Blaek Mask," she aecused.
With a resigned smile, Marley murmured, "Y"es."

His thoughts leaped backward over the career he had chosell. Like every other crimimat in the world, he had thought that he could outwit the forees of law and order. Too late he realized his mistake. The prisons of the Linited states are filled with men who hold that thought. The prisoners would soon enjoy his company, mused Marley.

Meanwhile, a conflict was raging in Doris' mind. Should she let the man she admired go to jail for ten or twenty years, or should she lie to her father and Parker? Suddenly she had an inspiration.
"Marley!" she cried.

Marley startled from his meditations, begged her pardon.
"Where do sou keep your loot?" questioned Doris.
"In an apartment uptown," replied Marley.
"IIave you disposed of any of it?" she asked.
"No, I stole solely for the excitement of it," answered Marley:
"If I don't reveal your identity as I3hack Mask, will you return all the loot and give up your double life? she asked eagerly.

Marley agreed and a few minutes later Doris left the apartment, with the diamond, wrapped in tissue paper, seeure in her glove. Several months later, Parker received an invitation to the wedding of Doris and Marley. For some time he had been following the romance with great interest.
"Two of the finest young people I know," saitl Parker, as he tilted baek in his chair to read the evening news.

By Wlsie Degler

Yesterday is but a memory,
$W$ ritten in a book of time.
Today is but a repetition With just an added line. Yomorrow is not a promise, But just a goal to seck. But tomorrow life shall speak.

Morning, noon and night each day Shatl find me lingering on my way. Each morning 1 shall rise to find Opportunities 1 Ieft behind.
Each day 1 shall kearn to live, And part with the best 1 have to give. Fach night I shall close my eyes and say, "What did I pise the world today?"

Days and weeks and years go by.
But Father Time works on,
And weaces the golden hours and days
Into an everlasting song.
Still upon life's broad highway,
I unconseiousty move ahead,
And find I do not live tomorrow,
But I live today instead.

The Beggar of Tripoli

Second Prize StoryBy Margaret Carter

The streets of Tripoli are very narrow and crooked. Thicy are paved with cobblestones, and vaults overhead make them look like long winding tunnels with patches of blue sky showing intermittently above. The homes of the wealthy merelants and Caids present solid gloomy fronts which seem to guard jealously seerets and mysteries of the East. Murder coukd be eommitted behind them and no one know. Their only evidence of life lies in the small barred windows through which wistful, almond shaped eyes may be furtively watehing the doings of the busy street below.

At thrce o'cluck in the morning, however, Tripoli was asleep. A concealing fog shrouded the details of the eold mansions so that the opening of one of the massive, earved doors was barely discernible. The huge iron hinges craked ominously; the door swung slowly open, and an aged beggar slipped forth. It would seem as if a black hearied pirate should have stepped from the misty gloom rather than th.it crippled, bent old man. Filthy rags, whieh were loosely wrapped around him, dragged behind him, making a soft whispering sound on the cobblestoncs. He wore a turban of okl saeking which was pulled low over his bushy white evebrows and contrasted, cven in its dingy grayness, with the darkness of his complexion. His eyes peered forth upon the world with an evil, intelligent look. His faec was furrowed with wrinkles, all but the skin over his cheekbones. This was smooth as a baby's and tended to accent his already high eheckbones. His brows were drawn together and two extremely deep lines ran vertically between his cyes. His feet were bound with rags and he aided his walking by using a long crooked stick which was worn smooth and shing by continu.ll use. Old Grund, as he was called, crept slowly and painfully along to the bazaar el-Attarin, the market of perfumery, where he seated himself in a conspicuous place. He was the first arrival at the bazaar, but soon other begg.urs came, Jewish moncy changers appeared, and perfume sellers arrived and opened their shops. They started the mixing of elear colored liquids in tiny viands, and a heavy, vague odor gradually filled the bazaar. Later the customers canme. Sheiks in from the desert werc buying perfume for their wives and daughters. Women, with beautiful black lace veils concealing their features, bought perfumes to enhance their charms and perhaps gain favor with their husbands. 'The beggars immediately set up a wail in whining, monotonous voices, "In the name of Allah give almsin the name of Allah give alms." The dreany odors of the perfumes, the gloomy wails of beggars, the whir of wings of pigeons and the gesticulating, ehattering shop keepers all eombined in forming a depressing atmosphere, steeped in the mysteries of the East.

The Koran, religious book of the Moslems, teaches that alms should be given freely to the poor. The customers of the bazaar lawfully iwoided these donations by saying simply, "May Allah satisfy all thy wants." And they passed on. They gave to no beggar until they came to Old Grund. No person, rich or poor, passed him by without giving him alms. His eyes had a strong, hypnotising quality that scemed to read the very thoughts of all he looked at, No one eould resist his "In the nome of Allah give alins" which he repeated over and over in a high, penetrating voice that fall unpleasantly on the ear. He placed all his alms in a strong camel skin bag which hung from his waist. The morning passed; the noon and the afternoon filed monotonously by. The steady drone of the market had the effect of a drug upon one's senses. Always Grund sat at attention, never moving his body, always keeping up the steady, shrill wail, "In the name of Allah give alms." lle did not leave the bazaar until the shades of night had fokled long blaek arms about everything. Then only did the Beggar Grund move. Ile walked slowly back to the huge mansion from which he had come in the morning. The door creaked behind him and he was lost to sight.

When Grund entered the house, it was as black and cold as the night outside. He felt his way with his staff into a far corner of the room. There he found garments and exchanged his rags for them. He placed his rags into a box, and called sharply in Arabic for a servant. The servant, a young negro, silently appeared with a dull blue light, which flashed and flickered as if the lips of some unseen creature were gently faming it. He set the lamp in the center of the room, disappeared, and returned bearing a repast of steaming green tea and barley loaves. Grumd sitently ate the loaves and sipped the tea, then bade the servant to depart with the dishes. Grund was now dressed in robes and turban of white satin. On his feet he wore yellow embroidered sandals. His transformation from beggar to a wealthy merchaut was astounding.

He took the flickering eandle and slowly tread his way through the mansion, stopping to peep into the rooms. They were all elahorately furnislued and gave forth a musty odor, as if they had been closed for years. From one room to another he passed, handling rare pieces of pottery and mosaic, resting for a moment in some richly ornamented chair or divan. Finally he descended a long flight of stone steps and reached a room with a small heavy iron door. He opened the door and went in. The room was small with a low ceiling. There were no windows, as the room was in the center of the house, far below the ground. The floor was padded with rich Oriental rugs. The walls were covered with tapestries of dark colored relvets embroidered with threads of gold and silver. The candle cast weird, uncertain rays of light about the small room. In one corner stood a huge, iron chest, studded with gold. Within it lay heaps of glittering coins, the returns of his hypnotising eye. In front of the chest, an incense burner slowly poured forth clonds of fragrant smoke which hung listlessly on the air. Grund scated himself on a chair made of gold and upholstered with light blue velvet. He emptied his camel skill bag into lis lap and ran his long, bony fingers through the small heap of gold. His eyes sparkled greedily as he counted the money and emptied it into the chest. Surely, he thought, if he had but a little more he would be happy and would live the remainder of his solitary life in comfort. "I shall beg for just another week, then stop," mused the man. He did not admit it even to himself, but in his heart he knew that because of his lust for gold, he would never stop berging; he also knew that because of an Eastern drug called morah, he would never be happy, not if his small room contained all the gold in the world. Grund placed some powdered morah in the incense burner. It smouldered and diffused a heavy black smoke throughout the room. In a few minutes Grund fell lnto a stupor. The events of his past life marched swiftly before him in a long, blurred, ghostlike procession. He saw himself as a child, always wishing and scheming to get what he did not have. He saw himself as a young man, and saw his joy and surprise when he realized his gift of hypnotic eyes. As he gradually put to use this strange power over people, he saw himself fall from merchant to a mere mendlcant, but simultancously become the richest man in all Tripoli. Finally he saw himself becoming addicted to the drug which had brought on the stupor.

All the scenes blirred together and became one vast whirling circle. He grew very dizzy watching it and finally fell from his chair with a crasll. There he lay for an hour or more. There he wouk lie every night. Every day he would beg for alms at the bazaar, until his body, his miud, and even his mysterions gift finally succumbed to their dread master, morah.

> ARE YOU SURE?

> By Evelyn Newman

Are you sure when you saw the first snowfall It wasn't rare powder from the Snow Queen's face,
Who leaving her palace's icy hall Raced with the gale at a whirlwind pace?

Are you sure the rain is a drop of water:
Or is it a dew-drop from heavenly bower, Swayed gently free by breczes' light laughter, From Paradise dropping, from an Angel's bower?

A re you sure the sun is a planet of light? Or is it God's laughter enfolding the world, In benevolence making all things bright, Each dark cloud turning with silver empearled?

On a Misty Night

'lihmd Priz: Story

By Joy Clark

The fog had clung aboat the eity all evening, and now great rain drops fell through the mist and spattered on the pavements. A dark stooped figure, wrapped in a ragged rain eoat, turncel the corner and started down the avenne. His coat collar was turned up to protect his neck, his hat was pulled down over his eyes, and he walked in an aimless manner, glancing neither toward the tall silent buildings, nor the street, where reflections from the are lights gleamed hazily on the wet asphatt. He seemed unconscious of the rain, which beat about him, and of the few stragglers, who passed him in the gloom. He stumbled along as if he were moving in a dream, and had no idea of where he was going-and cared not at all. If one had searched, he would have found no moncy in his pockets, only a queer picce of iron, and a little crumpled picture of a woman with a child in her lap.

A street clock chimed on some corner and the sounds came struggling through the mist. The two muffled notes must have penetrated the mind of the man; for he stopped, and stood still there in the center of the sidewalk.

The rain pattered on his old coat for perhaps fise minutes before he moved. Then, straightening his baek and pulling his hat down further over his face, he wheeled and started back in the direction from which he had come. He walked rapidly as if he wished to accomplish something before he again lost his courage. Splashing through the water that was beginning to form in pools in the uneven places of the pavement, he passed deserted, gloomy stores, that during the day were busy places of business. No one pussed him; every one seemed to have gone in out of the rain. Once in awhile a car flashed by, but it made the street seem even more lonely when it was pone.

The solitary fignre at last paused before an alley opening. l'eeping from under his hat, first np the street and then down, he entered the opening. The splatsh-splash of his feet, as he ran, sounded loudly between the walls of the buildings, $H e$ slowed down to a walk and gazed abead into the darkness. Stopping before an almost hidden door, he tried eatiously to open it.

Failing, he fumbled in various pockets and produced that gueer pieee of iron with which he workect at the lock of the cloor. Grating noises followed squeaking ones, and soon the door opened.

The man paused a moment, undecided, then stepped inside. All was dark and still, except for the pattering of the dismal raindrops through the half open door.

A match scratched and a tiny light flared. It tried to pierec the gloom; but it only went so far as to show ghostly the thin, gaunt features of the man.

He moved forward, trying to feel his way, holding the match before him. He stumbled against something; the mateh flickered and went out. All was in darkness again until another match seratched and another flame sprang up.

Still moving forward the man seemed to have reached more familiar ground. He had surely heen there before, for he tread with more assurance. Other matches replaced the burned ones matil the dark figure reached a tall flass case, which contained some objects that could not be distinguished by the light of the mateh. 'This ease was evidently his destination. He opened the long doors and extracted severit of the objects. As he passed them and in rectosing the case the natue on the wax wrapper of a well-known bread was illuminated.

But bread did not end his seareh. With the aid of more little yellow flames, he reached shelves on which were cans of soups, meats, vegetables and fruits.

He filled his pockets and a large paper bag he had found, with the food; and then made his way, hesitatingly, by the light of his last match, to the hack entrance of the grocery store.

The danp air met him; and as he stepped out, the rain hit him in the face. After refastening the door, and pulling down his hat, he slopped up the alley and into the street.

There were only a few blocks which he must traverse to reach home-hlocks he had often walked on the way to the same storebut then he had had money to pay for the thing, he had brought away: What miles of terror they seemed tonight with the raindrops tapping mockingly on the paper bag. Any monent some one might dem.nnd to sce the contents of that big. Ther would know he must have stolen them, for no stores were open at-it must be ahmost-three oclock in the morming.

A belated ear thundered up the street. Quickly the man hid in the door way, clutching tightly his burden. His heart almost stopned beating as it slowed up near him; but it only reduced its speed so that it might turn the corner and roared on.

He tried to reassure himself. No one would notice him in the mist and rain, if he kept in the shadow as much as possible. And besides wasn't he going to pay for the things as soon as he fonnd work? Every thing would be all right then.

Yet he was continually listening for footsteps behind him, and groaned at the jeering of the raindrops on the paper bag.

He had stolen that needful food. He had broken into a store and stolen it! He had taken it at night when no one was near-or had some one heen near to see him? Were they following him? Was that a footstep?

He stopped and listened intently.
No, how silly, it was only the echoes of the splash of his own footsteps on the lonely strect. His door was just a few steps away. No one could reach him when he was safe insicte.

Ah, he reached it, that little home in the tenements. He was greeted by the wail of a chitd. He could appease the hunger of his crying son!
He was not a criminal-he never would be. The money would he given to the grocer from his very next pay cheech, and perhaps he might get a job tomorrow:

Much of the success of school affairs and activities is due to the publicity they get from The News. No worthwhile pieee of information about North Central is unearthed withont its appearing in some form or other in this weckly paper. By its support of school affairs it has played an important part in the placing of our school in the front ranks of the city high schools.

Many honors for its journalistic merit have been awarded to The North Central News.

In Jannary 1929 it was elected to nembership in the Central Interscholastic Press association. The insignia which appears on the paper's masthead shows its mombership) as a eharter member in the National Scholastic l'ress association.

In Deecmber 1922 , the paper was judged the best high school paper in an All-American (onitest.

In 1923, The News took first phace in head lines and make up in the Central Interseholastic Press Association contest. Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalistic fraternity of the University of Washington judged it as the best state high school paper in the fall of 1924 and in the spring of 1925 . It again received AllAmerican rating in the spring of 1927 . This last achievement was repeated in 1929.

The Operetta

Carnival time in Vienna was the setting for "I'ickles," one of the most glamorous and gorgeous operettas ever given at North Central. It was presented on Friday and Saturday niglits, December 13 and 14. The musieal show was truly an all school production, the music being direeted by Mr. Rice, the daneing by Miss Pinkham, the speaking and drunatic parts by Miss Jones, the costumes by Miss Dalquest and the seenery hy Mr. Youngman.

The story of "Piekles" is one filled with beauty, romance, mystery, eolor and exeitement. Jonas Pennington, an Ameritan millionaire piekle manufactnrer, arrives in Vienna with his daughter, June, in the midst of preparations for the annual carnival. He is amazed and dismayed when he finds out that Jones, his advertising expert, has heen advertising Peter l'iper Pickles too well. Lady V'ivian, a very charming and wealthy linglish lady and an old friend of Jonas, atso comes to Vienna at this time in an amual seareh for her daughter who disappeared near here at earnival time when onty a baby. Kinski, the pompous policeman, aided by his faitlful sleuths, Bumski and Rumski, tries to suhstitute the lost child of Lady Vivian in hopes of marrying her for her fortune.

A band of gypsies led by Jigo, their chieftan, and his supposed daughter, Hona, visit the carnival. Events lead all to a mystical pool in a gypsy camp that reveals the face of Lady Vivian Delaney's daughter. Arthur Crefont, a poor but promising artist, wins the reeognition of his art and the hand of the fuscinating June Pennington. Lady Vivian say's "yes" to Mr. Pemington and the supposed gypsy girl, Ilona, is returned to her mother.

The entire stage was used. All the action took place in the innyard where the carnival was condneted. During the earnival the place was full of eolor and langhter of the tourists and gypsies who were making "whoopee." American tourists, Venetians and Giypsy vagabonds all helped earry the action from the fast moving eabaret seene through the hrilliant earnival time to the quict love making. A magic silver pool, moonlight pietures by the Gypsy and Venctian choruses and the haunting balcony love scenes were some of the unusual features. The gorgeous costumes and novel scenery were great faetors in giving atmosphere.
leads for the operetta were:
Jonas Pennington ...... ........ Ben Roberts Jme Pennington -......... Lanra Alice Sawin Lady Vivian Delancy .... ........... Lucille Boyer Ilona ........................................ Doris Boyer Jigo .............. ................................ Leslie Wade J. Jennison Jones ................... ..... Earl Wyatt Captain Kinski ...................... Wardell MeKay Bumski ........... ....................... Bill McCluskey Rumıski .......................................... Clyde Vigil Arthur Crefont Don Safford
Others in the cast were: Ray Hendrieks, hans Maier, the proprietor of the Wurtzelpracter Inn; Virginia Ludeke, Louisa, a waitress; John Hayes and Vernon Boland, waiters; Viola Mason, a Gypsy girl, and Merwin Peebles, a tramp.

The five dances directed ly Niss I'inkham were very colorful with their tambourines, costumes, and elever steps. Black and White Steps, Romany Patteran, A la Carte and Dream Children are the names of the danees. Kathkeen Flynue did "Gaya" a solo Gypsy dance.

STAGE CREW

In connection with the class play and the operetta an aeknowledgment of the fine work done by the stage crew should be made. The boys of the crew, assisted by Mr. Youngman and Miss Jones, spent many hours in repainting old seenery and building new. The set for the operetta was built in the shop together with many of the properties. The boys spent much of their time after school and after dinner working to make North Central's dramatic productions a success.

A large part of the credit for the smooth functioning and clever appearance of the scenes of this semesters plays and programs shonld be given to the fetlows on the erew:

Clinton Bailie is stage manager. Bill Rodgers and Randall Beehe had charge of painting the scenery. Other assistants were Jack Worley, Charles Vedder, Thomas Farmer, Ronald Rhode and Austin Soderquist.

Class Play

I comedy riot from start to finish was the three-act play, "Nothing lisut the 'Truth," given be the senior dramaties class under the direction of Martla Pearl Jones on Friday and Siturday nights, November & and 9. In unusmal feature was the fact that the play was presented by a complete donble east. Both acterl in a truly professional manner.
"Nothing But the "Trutlo" was one of the mont delightful and suceessful comedies that a senior class has ever had the privilege of presonting. It had a three year rom in Niw York and an cighteen month run in Chicapo.
'The action takes place in the uptown offier of a weatlly New York stock broker and is eontinued to the drawing room of his longr lsland summer home. During the conrse of a conversation in the offies. Bobl Bennett bets $$ 10,000$ which his sweetheart, Gwendolyn Ralston has entrusted to him to invest and double for her, that he can tell the absolute trith for twenty-four hours. Mr. Ralston, Diek DonHelly, an office partner, and Van Dusen, an elusive customer, thinking that this is impossible (uuickly take hillu up it.

From the first the odds work against poor Bob and the situations that he gets into are sereamingly funny. The three men harass him elay and night by all kinds of questions, all of which he has to answer truthfully or lose the sil0,000, together with the heart and hami of the gerl that he lowes. In this case he timde ant that the truth pays but oh, how dear! sometimes the truths lourt and white lies are the kindest, but he is denied the use of exen theses.

Boh gets himself and all others commerted with the bet in bot water and in rather tieklish sitnations, but he dhes mot waver. llis lifers future is hamging in the batance and things are looking back indeced when be is aved mily by the timely end of the twentyfour houm. forry thing is explained satisfactorily amd no real harm is done after all.

The Band

Organizations mean nothing in school life unless they accomplish something. North Central's band is prohably the oldest enterprise in the school and one of the biggest promoters of stuclent artivities.
'The hand has donc more than its share in providing pep and spirit at the games fur the past fall. Very favorable comment was received on the stunt which the hand presented hetween halves at the annual Thanksgiving gatlue. First a huge "[ $₫$ " was torned by the tand tows who then played "rlie Star Spangled Banmer. Neיst the letters "I, (") took shape and the I.ewis and Clark selool song was phayed. Finally they formed the letters "N (") and promally played their own sehool battle song, "leed and Black."

The officers have been conscientions in their Work. I'hose with the rank of handmaster are: Ilarry Hale, who is direeting the sax sextet; (ieorge Davis, who leads the pep hand and Herl, Slate, head librarian, Manrice Jersons is librarian for the reed section and Earl Me("arthe is librarian for the brass. Max Weber is the business manager and Darleg Reckord is equipment manager. Bill Nolan handes the drum majars job).

The full band with an efrollment of lo:3 is divided into smaller mits to allow more chance for developing eath loy.s ability. The conerert bathd hats fer members.

I ppearing about 20 times the past semester, the pep band set a new record for its activity. Members are: (George Davis, leater, Darry Hale, Herb Slate, Harod Firy, Farl Mecoarthy, Verrol Henrs, Dave Slee, Kemeth Morse, Wayne Graham, Harley Recked and Bill loolard. The boys in the saxophone sextet are: Harry Hale, leader, Harold Fors, Herb Slate, Dom Swan, Dwight Sailor, Biall l'ollard and (ieorge Davis.

It its semi anmal conecrt the band drew a large and apprectative andience. "Mareh Slave" by. 'Tschaikowsky and "ligolletto" by Verdi were the two principal mumbers presented.

The persomed of the band is as follows:
Cornct-Kenneth Bain, Watter Boomer, Ros. Charlton, Merwin Collison, John Condit, Don Endslow, Adrian flower. (linton Groncmeier, Jack (imm, Verrol Ilem? 111 of North Central's art work comes from this group of rooms. Posters amonneing pames. thebetes and blays are written here. Pow Wow placards of the different concessions are made here also. Ill the hathd worked adsertising in the halls and library is done by our art department.

Cartoms and layouts for pictnres in the News are worked up by these people and all the drawings and sketches for 'The 'Tamarack originate in the rooms occupied by the art sturlents.
'The art department proper is divided into two sections; special and fine arts, and applied design. 'This last beading includes jewelry, which is perhaps the best known class of the course becanse of the practical examples of Work displayed by members of the elass.

I study of art such as is offered in North Central not only gives practieal knowledge and techaigue Int alson gives an appreciation of heatery in the selool and home.

One of the oldest enterprises in school and one of the most bencficial to North Central is the orchestra. Too much cerclit ean mot be given to it for its part in all musical activities. This semester there were fifty-one in the class, the largest orchestral in the history of the school. U'uder the direction of C. Olin laice, the members of the organization practice onee a werk, for which they receive one-fourth credit at the end of the semester.

As nesual the orchestra played between acts of the class play and accompanied the operetta. This last service was one of its most outstanding of the semester. A special eonvocation for the purpose of bringing the students in closer contact with classical music was given by the orchestra on Wednestiay and Tharsday, Nowember 16 and 1 th, during the first period. The following numbers were included in the program: Halla Overture, composed hy Monins\%ko; Third Alarm March, by Goldman; Dance Arabs, Tschaikowsky; Orientale, by Cui; and Estrellita, by Ponce.

Members of the orehestratare: First violins (iardner Morgan, Elizaheth Peers:, Betty (iihb, Esther Jorgensen, Maxine Armstrong, Stanles White, Carl Butz, Jack Woods, Viwien Ponll, Helen Holten, Kathkeen Sullivan, Marian Dorteh, Phyillis Jacobsen and lunth Giladstone.

Second violins-Ray Miles, Arnola Sharpnach, Josephine Ileywood, Ilowaral Clark, Robert Brandt, Armand MeEwen, Frances Beam, bithel Aune, Emma Schweppe, Leo Riordan, Lawrence Bone, Edward Grimmer, Iloward Burger, Arlene White, Mary Barnhart and Helen Indwigson.

Violas-Dwight Sailor, Muriel Glayzer and Eiiene Brown.
Cellos-Constance Jordan, Kathleen Gerking, Lorraine Sullivan and Phillip Walborn.

String hasses, Edwin Atwood and Wayne Graham; ohoe, bidwin Armstrong; flates, Robertal Shanks and Howard Clase; first clarinet. Harry Hale; second clarinet, Panl Bevis; hass calrinet, Cleo Bullard; first eornet, Verrol Itenry; second cornet, Neal Nemman; horns, Howard Picklesimer and liill Nolan; drums, - rthur L'uicume; piano, Brertha Enfield.

'Whis year, chbate activities in North (entral were given their first sencloff by a tryont in Oetober to select the bembers of half the squad, the negative teann. Contestants prepared three mimute speches on the proposition that athleties as now conducted are not detrimental.
'Ihe other half of the squad, the affirmative tean, was chosen by a tryont two weeks later speaking on the opposite contention that ath. leties are detrimental. Preliminary to both these contests, all aspirants to delate positions had spoken on either side of the topie and a dozen or so for each side were declared digible for the final tean tryonts.
lalsie Mever, lichard Melane and Charles Campobll were chosen for the negative team and Myrtle Deadows, Russel Potter and Fred lawson for the affirmative.
'The formal stating of the semesters debate gucstion is, "lesolved, 'Ihat inter-collegiate and inter-scholastic athleties as at present condneted are detrimental, detrimental to mean more harmfnl than beneficial." 'Ihis was the topie for all discussion this semester.

North Central participated in the state debate league again this year and was given a bnsy schedule to work on.
The first contest of the year was with Sprague high school. 'The season was given a grood start by a deeision in fasor of North Central awarded to the negative teano.

'lhe nest debite was with Rit\%ville, partieipated in by the affirmative teallu. ' 1 'his was another state debate. Nithough the decision went to lit\%ville the North Central dehaters delivered interesting and logieal speeethes.

Butle teanis were eontestants in the next debate session, which was a dual eneounter with Coenr d' Mene. 'Ilue negative tean went to the lake eity sehool and the affirmative teans argued in the selaon anditorimm. No formal judges decision was wiven for sither eontest.
'The big debate of the fear ans the one nost important to North (enintral stadents was the triangalar eontest with Lawis and C'lark and Ilillyard, with the lharvard eup as a trophy. 'lhe negative team went to the lewis and Clark auditorian and the affirmative team met Hillyard in the North Central auditorimm, both debates being on the same night.

Nortla Central delbaters were eoached by. Mr. Becher of the history department. A good deal of the credit for the performance of the debaters is due to his corrective and guiding instraction.
All of these debaters except Kichard Mc-

To determine the ones to whom letters are awarded is the ehief purpose of the athletic board. A eertain amount of playing in games merits a letter in football, baseball, tennis, swimming and track.

The athletic board eonsists of the principal, vice principal, girls' athetie clirector, boys' athletic director, captains, managers and coaches of tall the teams. Formerly, the manager and coach remained on the board only. as long as their particular sport was in season, but now they are active members all semester.

SCRIPTORIAN SOCIETY

Oripinally the Seriptorian society was a eluh for all girls who were interested in writing. Now, however, the membersbip is limited to twenty-five girls having four final B's or better in Finglish who may submit original stories, essays or poems whieh are graded by a committee of judges. Those ranking highest are admitted. This year Seriptorians have devoted theinselves exclusively to short-story writing. Three girls are chosen to write stories for each meeting. A different type of story such as mystery, alventure, moral character or atmosphere story is used each time. 'These are written from key-sentences read at the previous meeting.

CATTONIAN CLUB

The Cattonian elub was orginnized in 1926 , by Katherine Kicsling, the first president. The purpose of the clul, is to interest girls in dehating. Several debates are given each semester by the inembers.

It was decided that the eluh be named for Mrs. Catt, prominent reform worker, hence the name Cattonian. Wach girl takes an active part in the projects put over by the group. During the year each member appears on the program either in a debate or gives a report on some literary or current topic. Ahout twice a semester the meetings are given over to entertainment in the form of dancing, singing and reeitations. Twice a semester the girls gather for a social merting; one of which is the initiation.

At the annual Pow Wow the Cattonians sefl noise makers and serpentines. Twice The News suhscription eampaign has been suecessfully handled hy these girls.

S. P. Q. R.

In 1914 the S. P. Q. R. was organized hy Miss Evans for the purpose of banding together students interested in the study of Latin and Roman history.

The letters S. P. Q. R. stand for the Latin words Senatus Populusque Romanus, which means the Senate and the lioman people.

It all meetings reports on some custom or peeuliar hahit of the Roman people are given. The Latin club has put on a number of Latin plays, has broadeast over KFlO , and has had a eoncession at every Pow Wow. It has contributed to the playfiell at various times and every Christmas it makes a clonation to some joor family.

mathematics Club

The Mathematies elub was organized in the spring of 1913 at North Central to promote and interest students in mathematieal sub)jects. The afgebra contest in the fall and the feometry eontest in the spring are conducted by the elub. Silver loving cups are presented to the winners in each contest and their names are engraved on the plaque in the trophy case.

Those who have three I3's or better in mathematics are efigible to memhership in the eluh. The Leewis and Clark and the North Central Math clubs alternate every year in entertaining each other.

The Mathematics club always takes an active part in school actlvities and supports school enterprises. In the annual Pow Wow, the largest event of the school year, the Mathematies cluh conducts the pop corn stand.

YE GRU'B STREET

Ye Gruh Street was organized for the purpose of promoting literary activities in North Central. Soon after its organization the eluh united with the lineolnian Dehating soeiety to form the Indian cluh.

In 1927 it was reorganized under a new constitution which provided for instating officers by a system of points awarded for literary work. The name le Gruh Street was again adopted.

The name was taken from a famous old street in the Iandion slums calfed Grub Street where many of England's best authors lived at one time, and where much of the world's finest literatnre has heen written.

SANS SOUCI

The French cluh was organized in 1913, and sinee then has played an active part in sehool enterprises. In the Pow Wow this year Sans Souci ran a candy booth.
The purpose of the Sans Souci, which literally means "without eare," is to develop a knowledge of the Frenela nation as a political and intellectual foree in the world. it helps to promote further interest about France, also to remember sueh men as A. Dumas, Lavosier, George Sand, Pasteur and Rugo. The students answer to roll call by giving a report on some eurrent French topic.
Only these students who have had two semesters of French and who have attained satisfactory scholastie standings are adinitted into the elub. Sans Souei has one husiness meeting a month and two social meetings a semester.

BOYS FEDERATION

Organized for the purpose of pronoting those cooperative activities involving the hoys of North Central high sehool hy which they Hay cultivate personal efficiency, competent leadership and social responsihility, and through which they may express an active loyalty to the highest interests of the school, the community and the nation, the Boys' Federation has been doing active work since the later part of the great war.

The work of the organization is divided into three departments.

First there is the community service department which consists of outside entertainment, philantlıropic and declamation; second, personal service consisting of information, tutor, grammar school relations eommittees; third, school service department, which consists of the paddle squad, Comanche guard, ushers, transportation, alamni, fire squad and typewriting.

The traffic squad aud the low Wow unanagement are two other organizations that eome under the supcrision of the executive commeil of the Federation.

Parlimentary law is taught and practiced in eonducting the business of the organization, and all elections are condlucted on the same principless that are nsed in national and eity elections.

This gear, for the third time in the history of the Federation, the dues collection has becols 100 per cent. Social functions of the year have Inern the freshie frolic for freshmen boys and the stag party for all new boys above the freshmat class. The community sorvice department sponsored a deelamation contest in which pupils of all the north side grade sehools participated. The boys had an active part in the Cliristmas work doue at the Spokane Childrcic's lIome.

Mr. Bradford has added his wisclom and services to the ability of the offieers and the results lave been an unwarering cooperation and mueh suecess.
'Those in the executive council of the Boys' Federation are: President, Roland Jolnson; vice president, Bill Shaw; clerk, LIoward McNew; treasurer, Stanley Colhurn; financial secretary, Bob Jolinson; school service department, Stanley Prague, head; personal serviee department, Maurice I'ersons, head; community service department, Harry Ilale, head.

POW WOW

North Central's tenth ammual Pow Wow on Wednc'sday, November 27, the day before the Thanksgiving contest with Ievis antl Clark, was a big success surpassing ceven the projects of the last few years which have given this pep rally the reputation of heing the higgest show of its kind in the Northwest.

This is one of the largest student enterprises of the year and takes a great deal of work to put it over. In addition to the Pow Wow management itself, close to 1,000 people contrihuted, together with over half of the faeulty.

Review of Football Season

With only one week's practioe the Indians started the season off with a bang by playing a seoreless tie with the powerfal Conzaga miversity freshom on the playtield. Althomgh the play was somewhat raged the tean showed flashes of reat power and fight. The ball was kept in the middle of the fied thronglome the kame and neither tean was able to pert the wal across the goal line.

Collorn was the outstanding star of the game for the lodians, making large qains themert the eenter of the line. Krause and Cozetti shone for the freshman agkregation.

THE: WILBER G.D.11:

In this Fame the North Central gridelers shawed a great improvement wer their playing in the first comest. Wilbur had one of the strongest teams in the Inland Empire, having elefeated (ionzaga and Wenatehee before playing the Indians, but the Nortli Sillers proved too strong for thom, winning 20 to 0 .

Outstanding players on the line were Iterman, Johnsom and Carbon, although the whole forward wall fimetioned well. Collorn and Everett MeNes were the limelights in the long gains and Collorn wobld plange the line for the rest of the yardage needed.

Walla Wialla fonnd the heavier and more experienced North central team too powertul for then to stop, and the Indians easily defeated them 3 tu 0 on the North Central playfield.

Firom the begiming to the end the Red Sen showed simeriority over the "Bhne Devils" from Walla Walla. Coblbom's line plumging and Frank sell's end rams were the features of the game, bringing the erowat to its feet time after time. 'This was Sell's first tame as he hatd been ineligible metil the secoud quarter. IIe proved to be the outstamating halfhack for the trihesmen.

Schnelner, a substitute quarterhack, and Barker, tackle, were the outstanding men for Walla Walla.

TIIE INEMSTON NORM.DI, (AME;

Still smarting from the defeat handed them hy: the Indians last vear, the Lewistom teacherb esened matters this year hy defeating the Inclians 18 to $i$ on the playfield.

Ifter finding ont that they could not make any yardage through the strong Indian line, the normal buss, with lovejoy thang all of the harling, maleashed an aremat attack that combpletely fouled the North Central elesem.
Lawiston made both tonchdowns from passes while the warriors pained theirs by the st raight line bucking of Collurn.
Ilerman. Johnsm, Schmidt and Carbon were the mainstays on the line, breaking thrmugh the 1 awiston forward wall time after time to throw the teacher hacks for losses. This was the first kame in three years that the lndians lost.

Displaying an offense that could not be stopped and a defense that could not be penetrateol, the Indians phaved havoe with the Stadimn high school team in the Stadinu bowl at 'Iacoma, defeating them the ta 6 in the only ont of tuwn game of the season.

Nouth Central's superiarity was mequestionable as they made a total of 540 yards gamed to their opponents bib, Stadimes only tonchdown chme in the second quarter when Willamson intercepted a pass and ran 1.5 gards (1) the grail.

Colburn was the outstanding player for the Inclams, carreing the ball 30 times for a total of $2 t$ yards, or an averate of cight yards a carry. Beeson, Schanitt, Herman, Johonson and ('arbon also played stellar fonthall.

Willard, Haire and Cosperson on defense and Collonrn and Mc.Willan on offense were the shining lights in the 'Tacoma linenp.

Phaying before the largest cerowel that ever witnessod a contest between these two schools, the Nortli central ludians casily defeated her closent challemgers for the city race title 32 to 0 on the playfichar.

that they could win over the North Siders but the powerful Indian tean handed them their worst drubbing of the year,

The feature of the game was Cox's fifty yard run for a toucldown on North Central's first phay of the game. Collurn, Johnson, I Ierman and Carbon were the outstanding players for the Indians while Gillman and Frechorg were the limelights for the Panthers.

THE GON\%AG. ( $\mathrm{A} A \mathrm{ME}$

In what proved to be the hardest game of the season, the Indians finatly emerged on the long side of the 21 to 7 seore, against Gonzaga in the Gonzagn stadium. The Irish bovs were vers confident of vietory and fought to the final whistle, but the powerful Indians were not to be denied and fought just as hard.

Metrowich was easily the ontstanding performer for Gonzaga, his runs around ends and his deadly passes keeping the Indian boys worried. Kearns and Seale also played good ball in the baekfield. Brickner and IAndberglt were the main stays on the line.

Colburn phayed his usual great gane at full and broke through for many large gains. Weleh was the outstanding halfback for the North Siders, time after time squirming and twisting his way past Gonzaga tacklers. The whole Indian line showed up well, hut 'Thyrian, Johmson and Carbon were by far outstanding.

THE W. S. C. FlROSH "B" GAME

IIthough the Indians outfought the heavier frosh "l3" tean from P'ullman, the boys from W. S. C. emerged from the fraeas on the long end of the 13 to 7 seore.

The frosh seored in the first period, after a series of line bueks and end runs brought the hall to the Indian tell yard line. Hughes raced the remaining distance for the first seore. The try for point was converted.

North Central made its lone tonchdown in the third period, after a $W$. S. C. penalty put the ball on the ontsiders one yard line. Colburn smashed ower center for the only counter for the Indians. Schmitt eonverted the try for point.

In the fourth quarter Ilughes ran 40 yards around left end for the last touchdown of the galle. The try for point went wide. From then on the game was played in the W. S. C. territory, but the Indians were mable to score.

Welch, Dech, Schmitt and Colburn were the outstanding players for North Central, while Iughes was all of the limelight for the college boys.

THE LEWIS AND CLARK GAME

Unleashing a driving attack that was unstoppable the Indians defeated the Tigers 19 to 0 to win the city championship for the fourth consccutive ycar.

Constant fumbles proved very costly to the Indians, as they twice lost the ball in scoring distance. Another tough break the Indians encountered was in the second cquarter when Colburn crashed ower for a touchdown, whieh was not cominted as one of his teammates was ealled for holding and penalized 5 yards.

Wheh credit must be given to the Tigers for the gallant fight they put up against the more experienced north side team. It can easily be said that the sonth siders played their leest game of the scason.

Much credit must be given to Ike Peterson. He not only stopped most of the North Central plays, but he also made as much yardage as any other player on the fiedd.

Mason, Dech, Johnson, Carbon and Herman all played the best game of their career. Herman and Colburn were both injured in the tussel and had to be taken out of the game.

North Central made most of its yardage from straight line bueks and end runs, while the Tigers largely played a passing game. In the last quarter Lewis and Clark started a great aerial attack but the Indians knoeked dewn pass after pass. The game ended with the hall deep in the 'liger territory.

THE SHRINE G.J.ME

'This year Spokane high school players had the honor of playing in the first Shrine Benefit game for erippled ehildren in Spokane. The sports writers from the three Spokane papers. pieked thirty playrs from Inland Empire sehools and thirty from the four Spokane high schools.

North Central placed nine boys on the squad: Roland Johnson, Carl Carbon, Stanley Colburn, Horton Llerman, Plil Schmitt, Dan Dech, Everett MeNew, Marion Malmoe and Framey Cox. As Ilerman was injured in the Lewis and Clark game and conld not phay, Tom Mason was ehosen in his place.

The ball used to start the game, kicked off hy Carl Carbon, was autographed by President Hoover. After the kiekoff, the ball was replaeed by another in order to keep the Hóver ball as a souvenir.

The Intand Empire tean defeated the eity lean : 20 te fi, la the first quarter the Spokance teall hend the ball within their opponents five yard line three times. hat did mot have the power to pomel the ball ower for touchdowns. The loss of Stanley Collonrn, who had an injured knce and conld not play, was greatly felt at these moments.

Ifter the game the players of both terams were honored at a hameneet given in the Jasonic 'l'omple. For his serviees to the erippleal children, eath plater was presented with $n$ leather bomall ceertifieate with his mame ent सraved upom it.
'This was the first game of its kind in spor kance like contests will continne as anmal affairs of a noteworthy event in the tall sports program.

Coach "Red" Reese has prohably had as colorful an athletic career as any one could wish. Mr. Reesees prey scheob elays were spent at l'ullman high seloon, where he wom honors in haskethall, feothall and track. While on the baskethall teann they won the state tomrnament the first fear and placed second the next rear. It is interesting to note that Pullman defeated North Central for the championship.

Recse entered Washington Sitate college int 1921, a pledge to the Kappa Sigma fraternity. During his frosh year "lecd" played toothall and basketball and won his nmenerals in both. Next followed three brilliant vears of playing on the varsity teann. In 1924 and 19025, his last two rears. Reese was elected captain of the separd for hoth sears and was rated as one of the best gnards on the Paeifie eoast.

Reese beeame a member of the grey "W" (l)h in which only men who have won letters in a major sport can belongr, and later was elected inte the Crimson ('ircle all honorary fraternity for mplerclassmen. Reese gradnated in 1925 , then become coach of athleties at ('ashmere, Wiashington.

Is foothall coach at this small school lieese has : very presentable record, winning it gilles, losing two and tring one. In his first year as haskethall coach his team finished seventh in the state tournament at Seattle. During his second year they finished fifth and his last year they won the district championshij.

Reesse started the first track tean at this athool and every vear had fironl two to four wen go to the state weet held at l'allman.
"Ikeol" enterod Xiorth ("entral as head hasketbatl and baschall ewadl and assistant foestbell eoack. llis hasketball teann won the city championship and plased second in the state touruament at seattle. The teanu lont its last E:Hme to Olympia for the ehampionship of the state.

Mr. Recese's basthall teann easily wom the city champiomship, only losing one gatme and that was to lewis and Clark Notling need be said about this year's toothall tean for it call rasily be seen that it was one of the best teallus in the history of the echool. Ind it was thromgh the hard work of "Red" that the tealll was so stlecessful.

Reene is coachong baskethall again this year and will probably have amother city championWiy if mot a state one to live ereetit at the elone of the seasom.

Nuch ereedit shomlel be given to this new eoner to the scheol, who althomgh he has been here but a short time, has already won the hearts of all who know him.

Mr. Jacky eame to North Central from (olville, where he was coade ot athleties, to be lasiselall coanch and assistant foothall coalcol. llis Work as assistant to Reese has been outstanding. Jacky had eharge of the lim. and turned ont the best line in the city.

Labrence is a gradnate of Wrashington State eollege, where he recerived his letters in football and baskethall. He played on the team that boat sonthern (alifurnial to 0 , a feat W.ich moalla a great cleal as W. S. C. has only beaten them twiere since they have heren playing against carh other.

IIKING

'The Girls' Hiking chub was started about ten years ago as a part of the personal effieieney department.

All of the girls in North Central are given a chanee to attend many interesting hikes and anyone who has not attended hikes has missed lots of good times. The student leader of the hiking this semester is Nitoma Kogers. The girls are fortunate in having Miss Beldon as faculty director.
'The average hike is ten miles, and a girl manst hike one hmalred mile's in threr conseeutive seniesters in order to receive her ermblem. I star is awarded for every additional seventy-five miles. Some of the favorite hikes are to Indian Canyon, Bowl and l'iteher, Down River, High Drive, Iincoln Heights and Dartford. These like's are made every other week if the weather permits.

POW HOW

Such a projert is of great worth to the schaod other than its main function of working up pep and giving a gond time before the big game. Opportunities are given for students to develop leadership, executive adility and cooperation.

Among the large attendance at the Pow Wow were about 500 alumni come back to have a good time at the school they once attended.

Gross receipts of the concessions amounted to s1,274.53. One third of the profits are given to the clubs and organizations handling concessions and booths and two thirds go to the Associated Student councils, under whose auspices the project was put on, After the expenses were defrayed the rest was divided between the Girls' League and the Boys' Federation.
lowell C. Bradford and Conah Mat Fillis were the faculty directors of the I'ow Wow.

Department heads were: Construction, Bob Johnston; shows, Beulah Fry; banking, Herbert Slate; publicity, Frances Jones; decorations, Harriet Parish; and tickets, Roy Henderson. A Pow Wow patrol under the direction of Paul Anderson, traffic commissioner, proliced the halls to keep order.

These people deserve a great deal of credit for their work. The many concession and specialty managers also did much work on the different parts of the project they wite interested in.
The Pow Wow princess was chosen by the entire student body. Bertha George, senior A, was clected to this honor. She was chosen from a list of seven other girls nominated by petition. The crowning of Bertha and the presentation of the princess's bracelet was one of the features of the evening.

Angry Papa: What do gou mean by bringing my daughter home at this hour, young man?
Joe: Well, I have to be at work by seven.

-Electric Service

VI

This electric service company, which is privileged to furnish you with clectrical entergy for light, cooking and power, is concerned primarily with one object-service.

This service is translated in terms of economical operation, efficient management and the development of the resources and commmities of the Inland Empire.

You are invited, therefore, to make use of all of the facilitics of the company, with the assurance that as a public utility, this company serves all and all alike.

WHO HAS THE ANSWER?
I ask an simple question,
This only truth I wish:
Are all fishermen liars, Or do only liars fish?

Catty Junior: I thought your dad was going to send you away to school this winter?
Senior: (The flapper was somewhat hitter in her explanation) So far he hasn't been able to find a fashionahle reform selool.

Here was a son agaln asking for another check! Every month he spent at college was costing his father more and more.
"I had no idea," father said sternly as he reached for his check book, "that an education costs so much."
"Oh, it's terribly high, father," was the reply. "And you know that I'm one of those that stuclies the least."

Modern Father: Large families are a nuisance. It's so hard to remember which one is responsible for which dents in the car.
